Mediation Program

What is mediation?
Mediation is a chance for you to sit face to face and talk, uninterrupted, so each side of the dispute is heard. After the problem is defined, solutions are created and then evaluated. When an agreement is reached, it is written and signed.

What is a student mediator?
A student mediator is one of your peers who has been trained to conduct the mediation meeting. A team of two student mediators make sure the mediation session is helpful and fair. There are 32 student mediators and 5 staff mediators at BHS. If you are a sophomore, you can apply to take a 20 hour course to become a mediator. The training is held each spring in April. Watch for notices in your homeroom.

Dear R…

usual, a… Sunday … doing … to repeat it for you. "Open Arts and Crafts Club" ran over, and Seth attempted to entertain, while I cleaned up, by telling jokes. I can still remember at least five, but I'm only going to tell you one. Two people meet on the New York Subway and are discussing how incredible it is. One is going to the Bronx and the other is going to Queens which are in opposite directions Seth explains. . . and that's the joke except that it takes Seth five minutes to tell. Kathe Strow clearly doesn't understand it but laughs when he finishes. Molly, who rarely talks blurts out "I don't get it." Seth tells the entire joke again. Kathe laughs again, and Molly asks if …

…joke. Seth says it was just a stupid joke and offers to tell another, but Molly insists that he explain this one first, so Seth tells the joke a third time and Molly has this constipated look on her face like she is trying really hard to understand, but she still doesn't. Later during exercise we pass the ball around as usual. Rochelle is sitting in her chair with her feet together and places her purse right in front of her feet. She goes to kick the ball and her purse goes flying into the middle of the room. When I put the purse beside her chair she thinks I am stealing it. Later she moves it back in front of her feet and kicks it into the middle of the room again.

Love, Robert

TOP TEN ways you know you've done something wrong...

10. Your dean has your parents' work numbers on speed dial.
9. The faculty buys you a free cafeteria lunch.
8. You have your own engraved fire alarm.
7. Half the renovation money is to be used for your own, personal detention center.
6. They put the flag at half-staff every time you come to school.
5. Your suspension is like a paid vacation for the teachers.
4. The BEA's main argument for a raise was you.
3. Environmentalists Picket your house because all the paper used for your AWOLs destroyed a rainforest.
2. You don't get yelled at by any of the librarians.

...and the number one reason you know you've done something wrong...

1. You can't remember what you did last Saturday, but your Homeroom teacher keeps smiling at you in a funny way.

Since we have no room in our paper for a pointless space-filler, here it is in the Murivian.

Everyone Welcome

TOP TEN ways you know you've been taking too many drugs...

10. You wander into the greenhouse looking for pot.
9. You're eating lunch in the cafeteria and actually swallow.
8. You make the benches across the street your second home.
7. Your chemistry teacher starts talking about acids, and a sense of guilt sweeps over you.
6. After you score the winning basket in the big game, you run down the court yelling, "I scored a touchdown. I scored a touchdown."
5. You wake up next to your best friend's partner.
4. You wake up next to your best friend.
3. You get to school on time for once, and realize it's Sunday.
2. You see a really fine person walking down the hall, ask them out, and your Dean shows up at your door Friday night.

...and the number one reason you know you've been taking too many drugs...

1. You have a thirteen year old child and you can't remember why.

for a copy of the new Fiscal Year 1996 [FY 96] School Budget. It does look like a large heap of random numbers thrown together, but upon examination, it displays many of the serious issues facing both Brookline and education nationwide.

The first statistics shown are some of the most surprising: next year, Brookline will have less new money coming in compared to last year, but will spend much more. Revenue growth will be down by about $200,000, but the total budget will increase by about $1.5 million. This will be accomplished by "assumptions". These are future things that need to happen in order for the budget to work out. One of these regards a new early retirement plan. Students will remember that three years ago many teachers retired because of special incentives being offered only that year. These incentives are back this spring. The budget is assuming that forty teachers will take up the offer this year, or about 1 in 11. This means that about one of the teachers you've had in the past two years had best be never seen again after June, or the budget could run into trouble.

been limited by recent State Ed reform. Brookline is hoping that Gov. Weld's plan to limit un-funded mandatory items like Special Education will pass [see related story on page 1]. These issues still need to be decided by the State Legislature, whose actions are often unpredictable.

Two other assumptions are that "Special Education growth will continue at current pace" and that "Bilingual [education] will grow slowly". A look at statistics within the FY 96 Budget Document

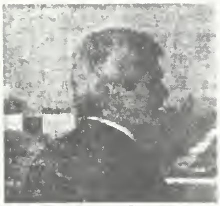
dents are wrongly placed. Dr Carol Dynan, Special Education Administrator for Brookline, asked if there are many students who do not need to be in special Ed, said that "they are few and far between."

With Weld's planned 5% drop in Special Ed enrollment, Brookline can hope to save a significant amount. The question many people are asking, though, is whether Weld is accurate in claiming that too many students are wrongly enrolled in Special Ed courses. Parents also worry that if cuts go through, students who have benefited from special programs might suddenly be denied the help they need.

Hold On To Your Lunch!

G.O.P. Proposes Elimination of Federal School Lunch Program



House Speaker Newt Gingrich, Republican of Georgia. His party proposed cuts in school lunch

Gil Dibner

When the November elections returned a Republican majority to the House of Representatives for the first time in forty years they arrived with the pledge of balancing the budget by the year 2002. Few, however, expected to find the federal school lunch the subject of legislative attack. If passed, the proposed reforms would certainly impact Brookline's School Lunch program.

Last February a House Committee approved a bill proposing drastic changes in the Federal School Lunch program, which serves 25 million children. The Bill would abolish the 40 year old federal program replacing it with fixed block grants to the states and would do away with federal nutritional guidelines. States would design their own school lunch programs and could apply twenty percent of their annual grant to other programs unrelated to nutrition and would receive no added benefits to alleviate hard times. The rationale behind this proposal is a desire to cut the inefficiency inherent in large federal programs and the assumption that individual state will be more effective money managers. Opponents fear the proposal dangerously victimizes children.

The Bill is still a long way from becoming law. It will likely pass the House with little modification but its chances for success in the Senate are unclear. In addition, the Clinton Administration has vowed to fight to keep the Federal program.

Currently a family of four with combined income of less than $19 qualifies for free school lunch. With combined income of less than $27,380, such a family is eligible for reduced price lunches. Nationw 14 millions children qualify for free o reduced price lunches.

Should the bill become law, students in Brookline could well expect the price of breakfast and lunch to increase gradually. There would also be less money available for fund

THANKS TO THOSE WHO HELPED ME LEARN ABOUT MYSELF & THE WORLD AROUND ME... ANDSE...

Robert J. Weintraub, Ed.D., Headmaster

I am very proud of the Class of 1998 because you have been pioneers at Brookline High. You were the first class to experience four years under a new administrative structure that replaced the House system. A "Dean's Team" — Deans, counselors, and homeroom teachers — was responsible for the entire Class; you had daily homerooms, Class meetings, and many of you did an outstanding job as Junior Mentors for the Class of 2000. You were also the first class to struggle with Time and Learning and of course, you experienced the "pain" and not so much the "gain" from the renovation of Brookline High.

You confronted these challenges with great energy, spirit, and good humor. You also maintained the important tradition of achievement at Brookline High — in academics, in athletics, in the fine and performing arts, and in community service. You worked hard and displayed great school citizenship. I look forward to welcoming you back as alumni to the "new" Brookline High and reading about your leadership in the 21st century.

Class of 1998

Message from the Deans . . .

Dear Graduates,

Ralph Waldo Emerson defines success as, "To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived."

As each of you follows your own path to success, we hope that you will be mindful of Emerson's thoughts and also pursue a life filled with the substance that makes you complete. You have been a wonderful part of our lives for these four years, and we will miss you!

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE CLASS OF 1998

Baker School PTO

It is never easy to keep reaching for dreams.
Strength and courage can sometimes be lonely friends, but those who reach, walk in stardust.

Shoshi you are a treasure chest of talents, insights, and other remarkable gifts.
You are outrageously wonderful and delightfully imperfect.

Celebrate yourself...
as we celebrate you!

With tons of pride and love,

Ima, Rick,
Gavi, Sara & Josh
